A Message from Denison President Adam Weinberg

Dear Denison Families:

Welcome to Denison. I am thrilled your student has decided to become a Denisonian. As they start their Denison journey, I wanted to offer some advice. College is not a one-size-fits-all proposition. The combination of classes and co-curricular activities your student chooses, along with the residential and social choices they make, will create a unique experience.

We want that experience to nourish and sustain them in college and throughout the rest of their lives. Here are seven steps you can encourage your student to take that will help start the process.

1. Embrace the academics. Academics will form the core of their Denison experience. Encourage them to treat every class for what it is — a unique opportunity to learn. Go to every class. Do all the assignments. Show up prepared to listen and to participate. Your student should also take a wide range of classes. This will help them find their academic interests. It will also help them broaden their skill sets and develop a more expansive worldview. Studying across the curriculum is core to getting a great liberal arts education.

2. Lean into challenge. Denison is a unique place full of opportunities for intellectual and personal growth. The Denison experience is a challenging one, by design. We set high standards and have high expectations because we believe in students’ potential. There will be times of stress. Developing the skills, tools, habits and emotional agility to deal with that stress is one of the most important lessons of the college experience.

3. Get to know the faculty. College is defined by relationships. At Denison, relationships with faculty run deep. Encourage your student to seek out opportunities to get to know the faculty. Make it a point to talk to each professor early in the semester. Encourage them to be open to and to seek out faculty mentors.
4 Be involved in the co-curricular life of the college. Getting involved outside the classroom is a great way to meet people and to develop good life skills, values, and habits. Encourage your student to pursue activities and areas of interest in a way that allows them to get the full benefit without becoming overly involved. Learning comes to those who value depth, commitment, and excellence — not just being busy with a lot of different activities.

5 Make room for cultural and intellectual events. Lectures, plays, concerts, art openings, and panel conversations are just a few of the extraordinary events available to students at Denison. Taking advantage of cultural and intellectual events expands their minds, imagination, and world views.

6 Cultivate meaningful relationships with peers. It is important to form relationships with people who bring out the best in us and who challenge us in the right ways. Encourage your student to form meaningful relationships with their peers and seek out friendships with people whose life experiences are different from their own. One of the remarkable attributes of Denison is the wide range of experiences, views, life practices, and interests our students bring to campus.

7 And last, make good social choices. The pull to “fit in” can be powerful. Encourage your student to ease into college. We ask our students to make good choices for themselves and to step up and speak up when they see other people getting ready to make bad decisions for themselves or others.

During my nine years at Denison, I have fallen deeply in love with this college. I believe Denison does a remarkable job of unlocking the potential of our students to be the architect of their lives. I want this to happen for your student. The steps above will help in that process.

Welcome to Denison.

Adam Weinberg
President
A Message from the Office of Alumni & Family Engagement

Welcome to the Denison Family!

We are thrilled to have your student on campus — and as a family member of a current student, we also welcome you as a member of the Denison family.

We encourage you to stay connected and participate in special events like June Orientation, Big Red Weekend and Commencement, and through regional programming and networking opportunities.

We want to be a partner with you to promote your student’s success. This Family Resource Guide holds many important tools and is a resource for you throughout your student’s career at Denison. Each section in the guide provides an overview, and where applicable, directs you to additional resources found at denison.edu.

The Family Resource Guide is a companion piece to the First-Year Notebook that your student has received from the First-Year Office. As your student transitions to Denison, they will engage in many ways with the First-Year Office, which coordinates academic and co-curricular programs and services for first-year students. We hope discussions about life at Denison will emerge as you review this guide, and as your student reviews their first-year notebook.

Stay in the Know

To ensure you receive important communications from Denison, please keep your contact information up-to-date. You can update your contact information at any time by visiting our Parents & Families web section.

We look forward to partnering with you in the years ahead.

Go Big Red!

Your friends in Alumni & Family Engagement
Helping Your Student Get Started

First-Year Experience

The Office of First-Year Experience facilitates the orientation, transition, and retention of all students in their first year at Denison University. Through their coordination of transition programs to assist new students in adjusting to the social, emotional, and academic communities they participate in, the office team works to provide an enriching collegiate experience. Visit the Office of First-Year Experience page for more information.

Academic Advisors

The advising relationship is an important place for conversations that connect the dots between academic work and the learning that occurs beyond the classroom. If your student registers for an Advising Circle, a 1-credit discussion-based course, they will know their advisor’s name once they are enrolled in the class. For students not in an Advising Circle, an advisor will be assigned to them by the director of academic advising. Their advisor will likely be a faculty member with whom they have a class or share a particular interest. Your student can have a rich and extensive relationship with their advisor, but part of the success of that relationship follows from your student’s initiative to fully utilize this valuable resource. Please visit the Advising for Students page to learn more.

Academic Resource Center

The Academic Resource Center (ARC) offers programs and services designed to help students move upward and forward with their academic performance. As a supplement to faculty advising, professional staff meet with students on an individual basis concerning academic matters as well as suggest study strategies and promote time management skills. More information can be found at Advising, Tutoring & Academic Support.

Registrar’s Office

The Registrar’s Office is committed to overseeing the accuracy and proper release of all academic records in accordance with University policies and state and federal laws. Your student will engage with the Registrar’s Office for course registration, academic records and transcripts, counseling and reviews of graduation progress, approvals for transfer work, and more. For more information, including background on key policies, please visit the Office of the Registrar.
Parents, Communications, FERPA

The transition to college is an exciting and significant one for both students and families. Denison seeks to develop independent, self-reliant students who take ownership of their education and campus life. Because our students are adults, we treat them as such, and want and expect them to be their own agents, shape their own experience, and to communicate directly with faculty and staff about challenges or concerns. Our faculty and staff are incredibly dedicated to our students and are here to support them in their academic and personal growth.

We encourage parents and guardians to reinforce this transition to adulthood and independence. One of the best ways parents and guardians can help is by encouraging your student to make use of Denison’s resources.

The University’s approach to parental engagement and disclosure of student information to parents is based both upon legal privacy requirements and the university’s philosophy that students are adults. We want parents to understand these parameters, and we offer some suggestions for how parents can stay updated.

- The federal law known as FERPA, the Family Educational Rights and Privacy Act, protects the privacy of student educational records, which broadly includes academic, disciplinary, and other types of student information. We also follow applicable medical and counseling privacy law.

- Generally, Denison will not discuss or share personal information about students with third parties, including parents or guardians, except in limited circumstances where such disclosure is permitted under FERPA and where the University determines that discussion or disclosure is appropriate. This means that we do not generally disclose to parents student grades, academic standing (including notifying parents about academic warnings or academic suspension), disciplinary matters, or details about athletics or extracurricular involvements.

- Denison will communicate with parents or guardians in cases of emergency or when information sharing is necessary to protect the health or safety of the student or others.

- In some circumstances, for students under the age of 21, and as permitted by FERPA, Denison may share information with parents or guardians when a student has violated campus rules on the use or possession of drugs or alcohol.
We understand that these parameters and legal requirements are an adjustment for parents or guardians, who may be used to receiving more details from primary and secondary schools where your student was enrolled as a minor. It’s also an adjustment for parents who have been accustomed to regularly communicating with schools, faculty, or staff on their student’s behalf.

Here are some pathways for supporting your student and staying informed:

- Stay in touch: Most students are helped by knowing that their parents or guardians are available to talk. Allowing space for independence is important too, so let your student set the priorities for when and what you talk about. Ask open-ended questions and give them room to air concerns, share successes, or just simply talk. Take the time to remind your student to take care of themselves physically and emotionally. And remind your student that challenges and even stumbles are normal. Encourage them to take advantage of Denison’s resources, and if they’re not sure which resources to turn to, encourage them to speak to their class dean, who can help connect them. If you are concerned about your student’s academic progress, confirm the course load they are taking; ask about whether they’re on top of their advising appointments; or request to see specific information (including printouts or screenshots showing your student’s schedule, their academic history, grades, and GPA). Denison defines various levels of academic standing, and has protocols for academic warnings and academic suspensions based on student grades. If you’re concerned about your student’s academic progress, you should familiarize yourself with the academic standing policies and talk to your student about whether they have received communications about their academic standing and what their status is.

- Ask your student to assign you proxy access to records: Under FERPA, Denison students can give others permission to access information about their student financial account, grades, and other information. This is called granting “proxy access,” and those given permission are referred to as a “proxy.” Instructions for setting up proxy access can be found on our Parent Proxy information document.

Over the last few years, we have seen an uptick in parents contacting various university offices on their student’s behalf, on issues we expect students, as adults, to engage, or with questions that Denison is not able to discuss because of privacy laws. Our approach will generally be to share the parent message with the student and ask the student to take up any issues they believe are important with the appropriate university staff.

We know parental involvement is most often coming from a place of love and caring (and habit!). In redirecting many parent inquiries, Denison is also acting on a sense of care. We want students to be their own agents. This independence is important to their success at Denison and life more broadly. We ask parents to join us in underscoring these goals.

Having said this, if parents or guardians have serious concerns about the health or safety of your student, you can contact your student’s Class Dean. This is a support structure the college has put in place to help navigate challenges or concerns when they arise. The Class Deans are as follows: First-Year Class Dean is Nathan Graves; Sophomore Class Dean is Sarah Rundell; Junior Class Dean is Torrance Powell; and Senior Class Dean is Mike Brady. In the event of an emergency, contact our Campus Safety department’s Campus Emergency line at 740-587-6777, or the 24-hour operator/dispatch line at 740-587-0810.

Financial Aid

The value of a Denison education is made available to students from all economic backgrounds through generous financial aid packages from the university, which include Denison scholarships and Denison grants, as well as federal and state grants. Funds from each of these programs do not have to be repaid. In addition to scholarships and grants, many students use a combination of federal loans, private loans and a limited number of loans from a special Denison fund to finance their education. Loans are to be repaid.

Domestic students receiving need-based aid must reapply for financial aid each year by completing the FAFSA. The FAFSA is available beginning October 1, and must be completed by April 1 to be considered for need-based aid. The CSS Profile is not required in subsequent years.

The financial aid staff offers counsel to students and their families throughout the financial aid application process and beyond. The staff can also help families understand their financial aid eligibility and financing options each year.

Additional information on financial aid, including types of aid and eligibility requirements, is available at our Types of Scholarships & Aid webpage.

Student Accounts

Your Student’s Denison Account

Each student has an account where tuition, fees, room, board, insurance, loans, grants, scholarships, payments, and miscellaneous charges are applied. Students and proxies will receive an email from Student Accounts on the first working day of each month. Students and proxies can view/print their account statement or pay their bill by logging into their self-service account. Please refer to each month’s email for the due date (usually three weeks later). Only students and their active proxies will receive the email and have access to the payment portal.

Granting Others Permission (Proxy)

If someone other than the student needs access to view an account, make electronic payments and/or set up payment plans, the student must first set up the designated individual as a proxy and authorize them to see their statements and payment history.

Students can grant access to proxies through their MyDenison login (see step-by-step instructions for how to grant access to a parent/other guest).

Denison Dollars

This is a prepaid, declining balance account that can be used on campus for purchases at the Bookstore, Copy and Mail Center, and all campus dining locations. Money can be added through the Student Accounts office.

Additional information on tuition, costs, payment options, and student insurance is available at Your Finances.
Your Guide to Campus Life

Residential Communities and Student Housing

The Office of Residential Communities and Housing commits to creating communities that are inclusive and supportive across students’ four years. At Denison, we offer cohort-style living for students, meaning that all first-year students reside in communities with other first-year students. This living experience provides students the opportunity to adjust to campus, meet classmates and begin to develop lifelong friendships.

Our residential program is facilitated by a team who cares about the learning that happens outside the classroom. Community Advisors, or student leaders living in the residence halls, build community by investing in relationships and leading programs. They also troubleshoot concerns, serve as a trusted resource and promote programs and events that bring students together.

Want to know more? For all things related to housing assignments, roommates, packing and more, visit Housing & Community.

Campus Dining

Denison’s dining halls and other food venues are great places to build community. Our food service provider, Bon Appétit, is committed to preparing delicious food, produced in a socially responsible manner using fresh, authentic ingredients. They create balanced menus with detailed signage and accommodate vegetarian and vegan lifestyles. Each member of the Bon Appétit staff is trained in food allergen awareness. Should you or your student wish to consult Bon Appétit personnel about a particular food allergy, or if you wish to learn more about meal plan arrangements, please visit Café Bon Appétit.

Alford Community Leadership and Involvement Center

Get Involved!

Getting the most out of the Denison experience means getting involved, and at Denison, opportunities for involvement on campus are unlimited. The Alford Community Leadership and Involvement Center (CLIC) recognizes the importance of co-curricular activities as a key part of student and leadership development.

There are more than 160 campus organizations that are a vital part of the Denison University community. With areas of interest ranging from social justice to intramural sports or music and media, there truly is something for everyone. For a complete list of campus organizations, please visit What to DU.

At the beginning of each semester, CLIC hosts an Involvement Fair, where campus organization leaders offer information and recruit new members. Those who get involved just unlock more of what makes Denison...Denison. Students are afforded more leadership opportunities and chances to build friendships with fellow students who share similar interests.

To learn more about student involvement, please visit Get Involved.

The Arts

The arts intersect with nearly every facet of life at Denison. Students often arrive with a passion for the arts, and once here, broaden those interests. Our programs hold opportunities for serious artists as well as non-majors seeking to continue to explore interests via engaging courses and extracurricular activities. Most students find their involvement in the arts plays an integral role in not just their college experience, but the rest of their lives, no matter their profession. All students are welcome to attend numerous performances and events throughout the year, with highlights including the Vail Series, which has a long history of bringing the finest in performing arts to campus, along with Jazz Guitar, Bluegrass, Film and TUTTI festivals, to name a few. Be sure to visit Arts at Denison for more information.

Athletics and Recreation

Denison is committed to a broad-based program of intercollegiate athletics, sponsoring 26 varsity sports. Over the last decade, more than two-thirds of these teams have been represented in the NCAA’s national rankings, postseason tournaments, or championship meets. The tradition of excellence associated with Denison athletics is due, in part, to the winning heritage that has been established over more than a century of intercollegiate competition. For more information on Denison Athletics, visit denisonbigred.com.

Denison students also have the opportunity to compete through numerous club sport offerings and intramurals. In fact, more than half of Denison students compete in some form of athletics.

Mitchell Center

Denison University believes that physical activity is important for the well-being of any student and critical for promoting a healthy lifestyle and positive mental health. In addition to intramural and club sport offerings, Denison students may take advantage of the amenities of the Mitchell Center, which also houses the Trumbull Aquatics Center, the Crown Fitness Center, the Mitchell Fieldhouse, Livingston Gymnasium, and Alumni Recreational Gym. Students are encouraged to visit the Mitchell Center, and our current hours of operation can always be found at Mitchell Center Hours.

Spiritual Life Center

The Spiritual Life Center at Gilpatrick House supports experiences for the care and expression of all recognized religious traditions on campus. We are here to partner with students in their journey, from finding a place to worship to connecting with other students or religious leaders who practice their faith tradition, we can help. Please visit the Center for Spiritual Life to learn more about campus groups, programs and more.
Stay Connected, Stay Informed

Parent Newsletters and Emergency Communication
You can expect to receive timely information and resources to help you best support your student’s success. Career Resources and Enrichment Opportunities

Austin E. Knowlton Center for Career Exploration

The Knowlton Center for Career Exploration is here to help students maximize their potential. The Knowlton Center Team will equip students with the support, knowledge, tools and life skills to launch and sustain a meaningful career journey that honors unique desires and abilities.

With dedicated career communities, resume building workshops and countless networking opportunities, there’s always something to keep up with. People, opportunities, tools, resources, support and news come together at the Knowlton Center.

Denison Edge

Denison Edge, located in downtown Columbus, is an extension of the Knowlton Center for Career Exploration. Denison Edge provides skill-building programs through immersive and unique career-readiness experiences. Through industry-focused programs, workshops, a leadership series, networking events, and more, students have the opportunity to gain hands-on experience in a variety of ways. Programs are a mix of in-person and virtual, and vary in length. Free transportation is provided for students when programs are in-person.

Having a state-of-the-art location in Columbus opens up direct access for students to the fastest growing metropolitan area in the Midwest. Columbus leads the way in job, population, and GDP growth and is home to some of the world’s most recognizable brands, groundbreaking start-ups, and cutting-edge research facilities. To learn more about Denison Edge and upcoming programs, visit Denison Edge.

Red Frame Lab

At Denison, entrepreneurship is a mindset. Cross-functional life and professional skills position our students to be innovative, resourceful and driven to create change and value — here on campus and beyond. At the Red Frame Lab, students explore and develop their entrepreneurial skills, engage with visiting entrepreneurs, and come to talks on business and design fundamentals. They take part in immersive workshops, startup weekend programs, pitch competitions, alumni entrepreneur summits and one-on-one coaching, plus more. Learn more about entrepreneurship coaching, design-thinking, consulting, and experiential programming at The Red Frame Lab.

Lisska Center for Intellectual Engagement

The Lisska Center for Intellectual Engagement supports research and scholarship, fosters intellectual community and academic enrichment among all Denisonians, and provides an interdisciplinary space for the open exchange of ideas, perspectives and arguments. The Lisska Center is a key resource for students considering plans for the summer, studying abroad or post-graduation plans. Specifically, the Lisska Center:

- Coordinates Denison’s Summer Scholars research programs
- Helps students identify and apply for fellowships for a wide variety of undergraduate and postgraduate opportunities for research, study and service both in the U.S. and abroad (e.g., Fulbright, Rhodes, Marshall, Goldwater, etc.)
- Provides financial support for potential research and travel
- Hosts a wide variety of academic enrichment events and activities

Learn more at the Lisska Center for Intellectual Engagement.

Center for Global Programs

The Center for Global Programs is the hub for international learning opportunities at Denison. It houses off-campus study operations and support for international students on campus. The Center collaborates regularly with the Lisska Center, the Knowlton Center and many academic departments and programs to expand the range of global learning pathways and approaches.

Students come from a full range of majors, interests and financial backgrounds. More than half of the student body participates in off-campus study at some point in their college career, with the majority doing so during junior year. There are more than 300 programs in over 70 countries. These programs are designed to enhance students’ education and thoughtfully engage with the world.

Students typically begin the application process in the fall of their sophomore year, which includes consultations with faculty advisors, department chairs and the Registrar’s Office to ensure that students remain on track for graduation and understand financial responsibilities for the chosen program.

Students are encouraged to connect with the Center for Global Programs if interested in studying abroad. Please contact globalprograms@denison.edu to begin the process, and explore denison.edu/global to better understand the programs and policies related to off-campus study.

International Students

Denison’s growing international community includes students from around the world, permanent residents who live abroad, U.S. citizens and individuals who identify as global citizens. We provide guidance for international students so they can thrive inside and outside the classroom. For more information on services available to international students, please visit our International Students page.
Student Health, Wellness, and Safety

Ann and Thomas Hoaglin Wellness Center

The Hoaglin Wellness Center embodies our vision for wellness — integrating physical health services, mental health services, and wellness education. The Wellness Center is a hub on campus for wellness opportunities, activities, and conversations, with the goal of helping students to build the habits and skills to manage their wellness during their time at Denison and also in their lives beyond The Hill.

In addition to providing clinical care, Denison also works to support students in establishing habits and skills to manage their well-being. Wellness Staff provides training, educational outreach, wellness programs, and services to the community around topics such as stress management, the fundamentals of wellness like sleep, movement, and nutrition, as well as alcohol and other drugs, sexual health, and body image. Students have opportunities to participate in wellness conversations, cycling, yoga, and Pilates classes, nutrition kitchens, mindfulness and meditation opportunities, financial wellness coaching, and a variety of wellness workshops.

Campus Safety

The Office of Campus Safety is committed to a partnership with the Denison community to ensure a safe living, learning and working environment. With a professional team of 20, the Office of Campus Safety provides 24-hour staffing in order to provide services such as lockouts, safe ride transports and first response to assist community public safety departments. Our team partners with local first responders to ensure our campus is prepared for emergencies. Students are reminded of the following ways to ensure the Denison campus remains safe:

- In case of emergency, call 911.
- Students should carry their ID card at all times, as it grants access to buildings, including the student’s residence hall.
- There is safety in numbers. Especially at night, students who walk on-campus or off-campus should go as a group. Safety escorts are available by calling 740-587-6623.
- Discuss expectations with your family about safety and decisions around alcohol.
• Students should park their car in the assigned area to avoid tickets or being towed.
• Students should install the Rave Guardian Mobile Safety app on their mobile device.
• Do not be afraid to speak up when something doesn’t feel right - tell someone who can help! Students can anonymously report a concern on the MyDenison page.

For more information, please visit the Office of Campus Safety.
FAQ and Useful Information

Frequently Asked Questions

What technology resources are available to my student?

Denison students will find many technology resources available to them on campus and online to support their educational experience. Students can expect wireless access across campus, access to printers and a generous printing allowance, along with media equipment available for checkout from the Information Technology Services Desk (servicedesk@denison.edu).

For more information on technology, including what students should bring and what they should not bring to campus, please be sure to reference the Incoming Student Technology Guide at denison.edu/its/purchase.

What is my student’s mailing address?

The Slayter Package Room on the second floor of Slayter Union is where students receive all mail and packages. Students are typically assigned their Slayter address in July. Students keep the same mailbox and address the entire time they are enrolled. To ensure a timely delivery, please be sure all mail and packages are addressed as follows:
